Punahou and Kamehamehas Each Take a Tumble.

The senior league leaders took a tumble yesterday, the Punahous succumbing to the Oahus by the score of 7 to 6, and the Honolulu walloping the Kams to the tune of 3 to 1.

There was a good crowd present. The first game was a most interesting one, but the second was slow and on the whole lifeless.

The Honolulu played ball yesterday, in places, and are drawing up to the leaders, who view the rapidly decreasing gap between them and the Reds with ill-disguised feelings of apprehension.

After winning yesterday's game, the Honolulu have a good chance to take the series and the pennant. Last Saturday week's tie game between the Kams and the Punahous will be played off on a date yet to be decided.

The Oahus put Rowland, a recent importation from Vallejo, in the box to pitch. His work was nice and steady.

Johnny Williams pitched for the Punahous up to the seventh, when Eddie Desha was substituted. Williams was found pretty regularly. Off Desha four hits were made in the eighth innings and one run. There would have been more runs made in this innings if Bruns hadn't put his ankle out of joint when in good line to score, making the third out.

The score should have been about two for the Colts. Right Fielder McQuade dropped a couple of flies which let in four runs.

The Oahus on the whole played excellently and a great many chances in the field were accepted. Tony Marcellino was there with the handy stick. He made two very timely hits, batting in a run each time.

(3) HONOLULU VS. KAMS (1).
It was a slow game and the crowd got tired and stamped to hurry the players up.

Both Joy and Reuter pitched good ball. In the second innings Joy gave four consecutive passes and Reuter was enabled to score. Joy probably wanted to show the crowd that he could do it again.

Errors gave the Reds a couple in the third innings. The Reds got their other run in the second, two complimentary and an error bringing Louis home.

YACHT MALOLO WENT ADRIFT

An excursion party bound for the Manahua wreck yesterday had some pilikia and lost all interest for some hours in the stranded steamship, troubles of their own keeping them busy. The party of four, Skipper Kruse in charge, sailed in the morning in the yacht Malolo. Off Diamond Head the steering gear of the yacht got out of working order and the little vessel began to drift towards the Colonies. A Japanese fisherman was hailed and the yacht taken in tow of a sampan, which brought her abreast of the harbor late in the afternoon.

Here she had to be set adrift again, the sampan being unable to tow her in against the wind. A note was sent in by the Jap to Young Bros. Will Young starting out in pursuit of the drifting yacht with the Waterwitch. The party was towed in about nine o'clock last night, being caught up with about half way to Pearl Harbor.

Afternoon tea served on the makai lanai every day between 3:30 and 5:30 p. m. at the Moana Hotel.

Benjamin Bros. are manufacturers' agents in Sydney, Australia. Greenhood is H. O. Greenhood, the exporter of 320 Sansome St., San Francisco.

Concerning the report that cures for Bright's Disease and Diabetes have been discovered in San Francisco, Benjamin Bros. wrote Greenhood to send a small order and if it really did the business they would send an important order. The trial lot was sent.

The above cable is the reply. It did the business. They couldn't wait for a letter, but cabled. Translated it calls for the immediate shipment of nearly $400 worth of Fulton's Compounds for Bright's Disease and Diabetes. The whole world is waking up to the wonder of the discovery. You don't have to cable 6000 miles. It's right at your doors. Send for literature.

BRITONS AND THE TURF

Horse racing has so strong a hold on the average out-of-door Englishman that when Derby Day ceases to be a great popular festival it may be taken as a sign that the security of the empire is in danger, remarks the London Daily Express in a leading article. It would be impossible for an imperial race to maintain its ascendancy in all regions and climates if its rank and file had no virile occupations or pastimes in time of peace, and in a small country like this, packed with its forty-four millions of people, these virile conditions of life can only be continuously assured by the pursuit of hardy, open-air sports. Rowing, football, cycling, running and motoring all have their devotees, whose sinews are toughened and whose lungs are expanded by their favorite exercise. As for horse racing, it is a sport of another kind—one which, as Lord Bunsfield recognized, stands alone in honor with the British public. It would be a mistake to suppose that racing could be eliminated from English life without any great resultant loss; and it would be equally wrong to imagine that the majority of its followers are either brutal or corrupt. Certain features of the sport are open to severe condemnation, but these are excrescences on a wholesome body, and horse racing is by no means the only national institution on which parasites fatten. The truth is that Englishmen obtain from racing and other open-air pastimes the outlet for humanity's natural exuberance, which in some other countries only obtain satisfaction by the excitement of actual or anticipated bloodshed. At their best our young men are a high-spirited race, and it is decidedly better that their love of exhilaration should find an object in watching a splendid struggle between some of the finest horses in the world than in fighting duels or calling for armed expeditions. Such a brilliant scene as was witnessed at Epsom in 1906—henceforth to be known as "Spearmint's Derby"—cannot fail to stir the blood of those who read the description quietly at home, and people who have never seen a Derby can imagine the feelings of the immense crowd which flocks to the Downs. The love for fine horses is inherent in all Britons, and when to this is added the expectation of a magnificent contest, the elation of victory or the stoicism of defeat, and the indefinable but inspiring influence which always pervades a multitude assembled with a common object, it is not difficult to account for the fascination which the sport exercises.—Auckland Weekly News.

THE PRINCE OF BILLIARDS

The billiard firmament has lost its bright particular star: John Roberts has finished, and handsomely won, his last match. It was at Hengler's Circus the other day, says a London exchange, that the most brilliant exponent of the fascinating game, the master of those who will now become masters, the champion of those who will now become champions, brought his competitive career to an end, in a manner strikingly brilliant, and thus characteristic of his life as a billiard player.

Roberts has been the prince of competitive billiards, just as he has been the inventor of more shots (for use in competitive billiards), and more systems of play, than any other man in the world. As W. G. Grace has been at cricket, so John Roberts has been at billiards, but with even more marked superiority over other players.

When the spot stroke threatened to rob the grand game of its variety, Roberts, in order to draw patrons where they could see something more than a cold-blooded exposition of patience and doggedness, invented the top-of-the-table game, and played it in a manner that bewildered the onlooker just as it confounded the opponent.

It seems ludicrous that a man who makes a break amounting to 125, as Roberts did in his match with Diggle on Saturday night, should be within a few minutes of perpetual retirement. The many great breaks that Roberts has been responsible for during this grand farewell match make the retirement seem to the billiard enthusiast the more regrettable—something that should not be.

All through this final contest we have seen the same dashing never-faillingly resourceful Roberts that we have admired for so long, and when he won this game, in which he conceded Diggle 2500 start, by 600, with a vigorous stroke of the cue that nearly sent the red ball through the framework of the pocket, Roberts ended his professional career as he had lived it—the commander, quite as much as the deservor of phenomenal success.

KID MONROE CHALLENGES

"Kid" Monroe, colored, of the Dixie Athletic Club and late of the Philippine Islands, would like to meet "Red" Dixon of the Kakaako Athletic Club in a boxing contest. Monroe, which, by the way, is not the happiest ring name a boxer could have chosen, weighs 160 pounds. He prefers Dixon, but is willing to take on Sidney Jackson, "The Wild Swan," or any other local middle or heavyweight in the aforementioned gentlemen's class, on or about September 1, under any old rules.

THE TRUTH ALWAYS.

"When you are in doubt tell the truth." It was an experienced old diplomat who said this to a beginner in the work. It may pass in some things, but not in business. Fraud and deception are often profitable so long as concealed; yet detection is certain sooner or later; then comes the smash-up and the punishment. The best and safest way is to tell the truth all the time. Thus you make friends that stick by you, and a reputation that is always worth twenty shillings to the pound everywhere your goods are offered for sale. We are able modestly to affirm, that it is on this basis that the world-wide popularity of WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION rests. The people have discovered that this medicine is exactly what it is said to be, and that it does what we have always declared it will do. Its nature also has been frankly made known. It is palatable as honey and contains all the nutritive and curative properties of Pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. A combination of supreme excellence and medicinal merit. Nothing has been so successful in Anemia, Scrofula, Bronchitis, Influenza, Loss of Flesh and Wasting Diseases, Weakness and Low Nervous Tone, and all complaints caused by Impure Blood. Dr. Austin D. Irvine, of Canada, says: "I have used it in cases where cod liver oil was indicated but could not be taken by the patient, and the results following were very gratifying." It cannot deceive or disappoint you, is effective from the first dose and comes to the rescue of those who have received no benefit from any other treatment. It represents the dawn of progress. Sold by all chemists everywhere.
